Scott David Woldow is a Partner in the Intellectual Property Practice, leads the Trademark Practice Group, and is Managing Partner of the Washington, D.C. office of Smith, Gambrell & Russell, LLP.

Scott Woldow helps companies build, protect, and enforce brands in the United States and worldwide. He advises on trademark clearance and portfolio strategy, resolves disputes before they become business disruptions, and represents clients in U.S. Trademark Trial and Appeal Board (TTAB) proceedings and related litigation. Clients rely on Scott for practical risk assessment and clear paths to resolution, whether the objective is market entry, brand expansion, or enforcement against infringers.

Scott is known for early risk assessment and practical resolution planning. He works with in-house teams to set enforcement priorities, align legal strategy with commercial objectives, and resolve conflicts efficiently, often through negotiated outcomes that avoid unnecessary litigation spend.

As part of the Firm's top-ranked trademark team, Mr. Woldow helps clients develop branding strategies and acquire and enforce U.S. and international rights in trademarks. He has prosecuted over 2,000 trademark applications before the United States Patent and Trademark Office and over 500 trademark oppositions matters before the TTAB. He continuously contributes to thought leadership in this space and is a sought-after speaker on trademark issues worldwide.

Prior to joining the Firm, Mr. Woldow was a Trademark Examining Attorney for the United States Patent and Trademark Office, with concentrations in the chemical, pharmaceutical, and medical device fields. Mr. Woldow is a member of the District of Columbia Bar.

Mr. Woldow earned his B.A. degree, with honors in Philosophy from Hofstra University, where he also earned Minors in Psychology and History. He earned his J.D. degree from The American University, Washington College of Law. During law school, Mr. Woldow was a member of Phi Alpha Delta, and he was a trial practice participant. Mr. Woldow also earned a Master's in Business Administration from The American University.
