Areas of Practice

Litigation / Trial Practice

Johnathon Koechley is a Senior Associate in the Litigation and Trial practice of Smith, Gambrell & Russell, LLP.

Mr. Koechley has represented domestic and international clients in a wide variety of complex and multi-faceted litigation. He is able to guide businesses and their general counsel through every phase of a dispute. His approach involves exploring novel legal theories and adapting his litigation style to suit each client's case, leading to success in resolving cases early in litigation.

Mr. Koechley also has extensive experience in later phases of litigation, including briefing and arguing federal appeals and taking cases to trial. Additionally, he offers counsel on various legal and regulatory issues that may impact his clients' businesses, such as insurance coverage or compliance risks related to emerging technology. With a focus on the evolving field of data privacy, he has provided consulting on changes to the CCPA, GDPR, BIPA, and other similar, pending legislation.

Prior to joining SGR, Mr. Koechley practiced at a national law firm where he regularly served as trial and appellate counsel for legal and accounting professionals in complex professional liability disputes. He also has experience practicing at a boutique Chicago-based firm where he litigated matters in various jurisdictions across the United States and furthered his experience with professional liability and data privacy matters. While in law school, Mr. Koechley was a legal intern for the Complex Litigation Unit in the Civil Actions Bureau of the Cook County State's Attorney's Office and helped defend elected public officials, career public servants, and law enforcement personnel named in high-profile Section 1983 claims in federal court and administrative hearings.
